We Are Advocates

Advocacy is a complex word which means all sorts of things to different people.

In our drama, we use advocacy to mean empowerment and support, which can enable our women to voice their concern about health and social issues in public.

Coming to the end of a 3 year volunteering project, we have helped women understand that voicing their thoughts, opinions and ideas to further a peaceful cause is perfectly acceptable.

In our drama, you will witness isolation, frustration, joys and sorrows.

You will see the difficulty of getting jobs even when they have the qualifications.

You will also witness the sense of relief whenever Muslim women come together as they do at SMWA.

As we dramatize a talk show you will see how diverse issues play themselves out.

Based on real stories, we explore issues such as non-provision of proper halal food, insufficient midwives, not to mention, the birth of a baby that who almost didn't make it.

These are just the tip of the iceberg for a lot of Muslim women.

We hope that someday, in future these issues will be things of the past.
